Wisner Denies Mulligan Link

Former B.C. Attorney-General
Testifies at Police Probe

VANCOUVER (CP)—Former attorney-general Gordon Wisner said today it was "absurd" that there could have been any protective "arrangement" between himself and police chief Walter Mulligan.

Mr. Wisner, attorney-general in the coalition government of Byron Johnson from 1946 to 1952, was one of the first witnesses to appear today before the R. H. Tupper royal commission into police affairs.

The commission, inquiring into all aspects of police administration and charges of corruption within the 750-man force, met in its 29th sitting today after a 10-day adjournment.

Earlier W. W. Lefaux, counsel for mystery woman Helen Elizabeth Douglas, told Commissioner Tupper that his client was "in no way disguised" when she made her appearance before the inquiry two weeks ago.

Into the 29th day after a 10-day adjournment, John G. (Jay) Gould, counsel for police chief Walter Mulligan, said he intended to subpoena the husband of Miss Douglas.

She has never been identified publicly by her married name.

Mr. Gould, who addressed the commission before Mr. Lefaux' denial, had said he would not cross-examine the woman unless she was placed on the witness stand without disguise.

WORE NO MAKE-UP

Mr. Lefaux' wife said following Miss Douglas' first appearance, that the witness had been disguised with a yellow wig and horn-rimmed glasses which she normally does not wear.

Mr. Lefaux said today:

"I have a pen-and-ink sketch which appeared in the Vancouver Province last September and which is a most excellent likeness. It couldn't have been done unless you could see the features."

"I have known the woman for years. Steps were taken to protect her from photographers."

In response to questioning by Commissioner R. H. Tupper, Mr. Lefaux said:

"She was here without a wig."

"No theatrical make-up?" the commissioner asked.

"No make-up of any kind."

Mr. Tupper then asked the lawyer how he could account for an interview his wife gave a newspaper saying Miss Douglas had been heavily disguised and would appear again in court in a different disguise.

Mr. Lefaux admitted his wife gave the interview in an effort to protect the client.

Miss Douglas told the commission at her first appearance that during the five-year period from 1944 to 1949—before she was married—she and Chief Mulligan had an association which included out-of-town trips, one of them to a police chiefs' convention in Montreal.

She said he bought her expensive presents, including a farm.

Today, Mr. Lefaux said efforts were made when the (Continued on Page 21)

U.K. DOLLAR STOCKPILE AT 2-YEAR LOW

LONDON (AP)—Britain's vital gold and dollar reserves suffered a drain of $112,000,000 during September and dropped to their lowest level in two years, the treasury disclosed tonight.

The monthly announcement of the reserves position showed that they sagged to a total of $2,345,000,000 as of Sept. 30. This figure stands $345,000,000 above what officials regard as the danger level.

Britain acts as gold and dollar banker for the entire sterling area—which includes all the Commonwealth countries except Canada—and their solvency in world trade depends on the state of the reserves.

French Premier Risks Downfall Over Morocco

Orders Council To Succeed Sultan

PARIS (UP)—Premier Edgar Faure risked the downfall of his government today by ordering the immediate formation of a throne council to replace the ousted Sultan of Morocco.

Faure's order to Resident-General Pierre Georges Boyer de Latour in Rabat, French Morocco, touched off a walkout threat by Gaullist members of his cabinet.

When Boyer de Latour engineered Ben Moulay Arafa's removal to Tangier last Saturday, he made an agreement with the 'Fregeance Francaise, a group of French settlers in Morocco, that no throne council would be formed.

The rightwing groups in the cabinet went along with that view and threatened to resign if Faure proceeded with his plan to form a council.

At the same time, the left wing parties moved against Faure. Socialists and some members of his own Radical Socialist party charged that the premier has not been firm enough in applying his reform policy for Morocco.

Both left and right were determined to bring the government's vulnerable North African policy to the floor of the chamber for a decisive debate as soon as possible.

It was on North Africa that the government of former Premier Pierre Mendes-France fell last February.

Macmillan Flies To Report to Eden On UN Situation

LONDON (UP)—British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan flew to 10 Downing Street from London airport in a helicopter today to report to the cabinet on the international situation. He had landed minutes earlier from a trans-Atlantic flight from New York. Eden held up the start of the cabinet meeting to get Macmillan's report.

FRANTIC VANCOUVER RESIDENTS struggled from their homes, attempting to save their belongings as a wind-fanned inferno engulfed an unoccupied apartment block and three other houses at Bidwell and Comox, early today. Four persons were trapped and killed before they could be aroused. Police arrested a man near the fire. (Vancouver Sun photo.)

Premiers Bargain Behind Doors At Historic Ottawa Conference

By JOHN McBLANE
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—The federal provincial conference today devoted the morning to discussing general fiscal arrangements among the provinces and then turned that No. 1 subject over to a committee of financial experts.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said the first closed meeting of the conference was given over to enlarging on a plan which he put before Monday's opening public meeting as a possible alternative to the existing tax-rental agreements.

Each premier was concerned "with its effect on his own provinces under varying conditions," the prime minister said.

Topic for this afternoon's sittings was not revealed, but it is possible the premiers will take up the question of national health insurance.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, whose government would be asked to share costs of any program, set out these terms Monday for federal participation in a step-by-step plan:

1. A substantial majority of provinces with a substantial majority of the country's population would have to take part.

2. It must be operated and administered by the provinces.

3. It must involve no constitutional change or interference in provincial affairs and must be in the national interest.

Mr. St. Laurent did not mention what the federal share of costs might be.

But Premier Frost of Ontario, who had asked that health insurance be placed on the conference agenda, suggested a 60-per-cent federal contribution to a gradual plan which would develop eventually to hospital insurance covering everyone.

Beneficiaries would pay a share through payroll deductions and other collection methods.

VARIED REACTION
Reactions of other premiers varied, but Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan and Bennett of British Columbia, both of whose provinces have forms of health or hospital insurance, (Continued on Page 21)

Vancouver Arson Fire Kills Four

West End Firebug Hunted

VANCOUVER (CP)—Four persons died in a flaming rooming house here today in a blaze described by a fire chief as arson.

The dead were identified as:

Mrs. Elizabeth Kerr, about 80;
Albert H. Stranks, 76;
Mary Eleanor Stranks, 80;
Miss Doreen Powell, about 47.

The fire started about 6:45 a.m. in a nearly-completed apartment block in the crowded west end residential district.

The area, adjacent to the downtown business district, has been the scene of a dozen minor fires during the last several weeks and police and fire marshals said a firebug was at work.

The fire spread from the apartment block to three rooming houses which stand scant feet apart all down the block.

All the dead were in one of the rooming houses, purchased last Saturday by W. H. Leary, who came here a week ago from Whitecourt, Alta., with his wife.

Mr. Leary said he put $9,100 down on the $25,000 property.

Coroner Glen McDonald said the four dead were found on the top floor of the house which was occupied "mostly by elderly people."

The blaze, still burning but under control two hours after it erupted, caused damage believed upwards of $200,000.

"We had just moved out here from Alberta where we sold our ranch about 100 miles east of Edmonton," Mr. Leary said.

"We moved into the house Monday night. I woke up this morning with a policeman shaking my shoulder and I had to run out with the clothes I've got on."

"I guess we lost just about everything."

A drunken man was reported arrested in the neighborhood, bounded by Bidwell and Comox Streets, but police declined to say if he was an arson suspect.

The fire was driven by a brisk wind and police turned in three alarms to keep the blaze from sweeping the district.

One woman was treated at hospital for shock.

DELIBERATELY SET

Acting fire chief R. H. Pinker said the fire "couldn't get away that fast unless it was deliberately set."

"We definitely suspect arson," Jack Zaitzow, owner of the apartment block, said.

"It couldn't have been anything else. There was nothing in the apartment to burn. It was all raw timber." He estimated the building was worth $100,000.

Heat from the fire blistered the homes across Comox street and singed lawns 30 feet away. A late-model Cadillac car, standing in front of the death house, blistered then exploded as the gas tank blew.

The possibility of arson gained strength when a neighbor, who declined use of her name, said a man was seen lurking in the vicinity before the fire broke out.

POLICE SPOT FLAMES

Constables Ron Thompson and Jack Bissett, patrolling the area of old, closely packed rooming houses, spotted the blaze.

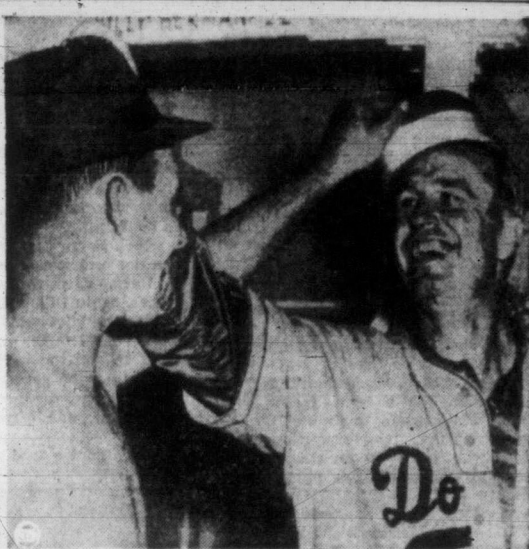

"I went into one of the houses and Jack went into the other, on either side of the apartment building," Const. Thompson said.

"Suddenly there was a big sheet of flame which carried over the home I was in on the west side of the apartment."

"I got a young woman and elderly couple out and started back upstairs but the flames started coming through the windows."

Firemen reported the wooden fire escape on Mr. Leary's home was on the side of the house first hit by the flames and was one of the first things to burn.

Firemen fought the blaze in a pelting rainstorm.

Old Cap Won't Fit

The big dream finally came true for the Brooklyn Dodgers today as they defeated New York Yankees, 2-0, to win the first World Series in Brooklyn history. Podres pitched a complete game, allowing no hits and no runs.

A spectacular one-handed catch by Sandy Amoros in the sixth inning with two Yanks on base and none out was another decisive factor.

Thus the Dodgers captured their first championship on their eighth attempt and their sixth try against the Yankees. It was the Yankees' first defeat in the series since 1942 when St. Louis Cardinals accomplished the feat.

It also was the first series loss for Casey Stengel since he took over the Yankees helm in 1949 and won five straight world series and six pennants.

DODGERS SET RECORD

The Dodgers became the first team ever to drop the first two games and then rally to win the series in seven games.

They struck first against lefty Tommy Byrne, who had whipped them in the second game with a five-hitter. In the fourth inning, Roy Campanella, heavy-hitting Dodger catcher who had been hitless in 12 previous trips to the plate at Yankee Stadium, doubled to left. He went to third on Carl Furillo's roller to short and came charging home on Hodges' line single to left.

In the sixth, the Dodgers loaded the sacks on Byrne, who then was replaced by Bob Grim, a Brooklyn resident. Hodges flied deep to Bob Cerv in right centre and Pee-wee Reese scampered home from third.

CONSTANT THREAT

That was it although the Yanks threatened constantly as tension mounted and pulses pounded in the supercharged atmosphere.

In their half of the sixth, especially, it looked as if the Yanks were going to break the spell of the cool lefthander.

Billy Martin walked on four pitches and Clem Labine, ace of the Dodger bullpen corps, started to warm up. Gil McDougald laid down a bunt inside the (Continued on Page 21)

"Many intelligent men and women are held back in their jobs and social lives because they use poor English or can't speak and write effectively," says Don Bolander, director of English at Career Institute, Chicago.

But the use of effective English pays off in unexpected ways," says Bolander, "because language is a tool of thought as well as a tool of expression."

Bennett Sees New Tax Deal

Ottawa Compromise Forecast On Demand for 'Bigger Slice'

OTTAWA (Special)—B. C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett was confident today the federal government "will give ground" at the historic Dominion-Provincial taxation conference, now in its second day.

Monday Mr. Bennett joined with other premiers in demanding a bigger cut out of the federal cashbox, even though Prime Minister St. Laurent said earlier the federal cabinet's mind was open to any proposal except one that would increase federal treasury payments.

Today B.C.'s Mr. Bennett said he expected the federal government would compromise with the provincial demand for more tax dollars.

He emphasized Mr. St. Laurent's statement Monday that the conference's job is "to plan for normal times, good times."

These times are here, Mr. Bennett argued. "There is a real easing of international tensions and the gross national product is rising at an astounding rate," he told newsmen as he entered the conference room.

In his formal presentation Monday, Mr. Bennett offered three plans to produce for the provinces the "larger return" they require "from the direct tax fields rented to the federal government" under the taxation pacts which expire in March, 1957.

Wants to Share in Income Taxes

His first proposal, and obviously the one he would prefer, calls for B.C. to share the personal and corporation tax fields with Ottawa.

The proposal also calls for sharing the field of succession duties.

Ottawa would provide the collection machinery, and deductions would be uniform for both federal and provincial purposes.

Premier Bennett's plan calls for Ottawa to reduce its personal and corporation tax rates, up to the amount B.C. would levy. This would mean no tax increases.

He told the conference that B.C. feels the provinces are entitled to get as much from the income tax fields as they would receive if tax rates levied by the provinces in 1941 were again put in effect.

For personal income, this would necessitate a return to B.C. of approximately 2 per cent on gross provincial personal income.

Corporation tax: 10 per cent of net taxable income. Succession duties: rates of not less than 10 per cent of the present federal succession duty rates.

Premier Bennett's second proposal is designed for those provinces which desire to stay in the tax-rental agreements. He said they would be similar to existing agreements "but based on a fair and realistic measure of tax potential to determine the minimum rental fee."

Could Produce Millions From Gas

Premier Bennett also asked the provinces to approve a recommendation that the federal government allow the provinces sole right to collect corporation income taxes from power corporations.

Ottawa now collects the tax, and pays half the amount to the provinces. In B.C.'s case, the province will receive about $1,000,000 from the tax in the current fiscal year.

In addition to the immediate $1,000,000 gain if Ottawa agreed to vacate this tax field, B.C. would stand to gain many more millions in the not too distant future.

For the power tax also applies to companies engaged in the distribution of natural gas. Construction of West-Coast's natural gas pipeline is scheduled to start almost immediately, so the province could count on expanding revenues from this source.

Premier Bennett also asked Ottawa to allow provincial taxes on the net income of mining and logging operations to be deducted from federal income tax, and said the same deductibility should apply to net income of firms engaged in natural gas and petroleum operations.

On the question of highways, Premier Bennett asked the federal government to contribute to the cost not only of the Trans-Canada Highway, but to "a main trunk highway development program in the provinces."

He said that federal participation "should be based on a formula which will make allowance for topographical and other conditions which contribute to higher construction and maintenance costs and to a larger road mileage."

He also wants the new formula to be retroactive in regard to Trans-Canada highway costs, now split 50-50.

This proposal would have considerable impact in B.C. Road-building in the Fraser Canyon section of the Trans-Canada has cost $1,000,000 a mile in some locations, and rugged mountainous territory from the Alberta boundary through to Victoria has shoved Trans-Canada costs in B.C. far above the average for other provinces.

Spaniard Captures European Title

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP)—Young Martin of Spain won the European flyweight boxing championship Monday night by knocking out defending champion Dai Dower of Wales in the 12th round of the scheduled 15-round bout.

Dower weighed 110½, Martin 110½.

The CGT was the only one of Peron's three principal supporting groups to survive the army, navy and air force revolution led by provisional president Eduardo Lonardi.

Most of the Peronista men's party leaders are in jail, and the women's party seems to have fallen apart.

Rahk and file discontent among the 6,000,000 workers of the CGT's unions came to a violent head Monday night and today, when Peronista leaders were ousted in at least a dozen key groups and local executive boards seized by rebels.

The discontent has been simmering since last year. It has been based principally on the habit of Peron's supporters in forcing officers of their own choosing on the workers through strongarm methods.

GOOD TEETH OR BAD?

IT'S FOR YOU TO SAY!

Barring rare abnormalities, Nature started each of us with a sound, healthy body, well equipped with the means of maintaining good health and fighting disease, including that most common of all diseases—dental decay.

Nature also provides us with a beautiful supply of wholesome, natural food—food that contains all necessary substances for building healthy teeth and sound teeth, as well as all other tissues of the body.

Animals instinctively use that food in the form in which it is found, as exemplified by Nature's plan. But we humans, though improving on Nature in some respects, often suffer grievously from misuse of natural foods.

For example, whole grain contains the pure white heart material favored for white and pasty flours; but whole grain also contains many other substances necessary to good health—substances patently omitted out to prevent discoloration of white flour. In past years, such by-products of white flour manufacture were discarded, or fed only to animals.

Now, knowing how valuable these by-products are, we spend much time and effort readding them for human use. But although we have learned how to take grain apart, we are far from being as efficient as Nature in putting it together again. Something valuable is always lost in the process.

How much simpler, less costly and more beneficial to health to use only whole grain flour, or whole grain products, rather than ultra-refined, vitamin-stripped white flour! Specifically, such misuse of natural foods may be, add very often is reflected, obviously and unpleasantly, as a major cause of disease of mouth tissue and tooth decay.

In subsequent articles in this series, harmful food habits and their effect on dental health will be discussed more fully. They will show how simple mouth health, faithfully observed, will almost completely control and eradicate dental decay.

Indonesia Nationalists Lead in Vote

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—The nationalist "Proletarian Front" Monday night appeared headed for a smashing victory in Indonesia's first parliamentary elections.

Its vote, mostly in Java, snowballed near the 6,000,000 mark, with margins over three other major parties ranging up to 2,000,000.

The Nationalists, whose basic policies dovetail with those of the Indonesian Communists, seem sure to capture a majority of the parliament's 260 seats. Java, the most populous of the republic's 3,000 islands, has 168 seats.

On the basis of unofficial tabulations of about 20,000,000 votes, the Nationalists would have to lose parts of Java and all the rest of the country to fail to get a working majority in parliament—and no one expects that to happen.

The latest unofficial vote totals of the top four parties showed a surprising setback for the Moslem Masjumi party.

The Nationalists led 5,788,850; the Moslem Orthodox Radicals, 4,399,378; the Communists, 4,089,273, and the Masjumi, 3,648,563.

Penitent's Bench

THERE is nothing dramatic or spectacular about a visit to the Kiwanis clinic for a chest x-ray.

You walk into the office with your appointment notice in your hand. An attending nurse asks you a few inoffensive personal questions and gives you a slip of paper. Then she ushers you into a corridor where you wait until the technicians are ready for you.

Stott

You don't have to put on a fresh shirt or bother with your hair. It doesn't show in the picture. You merely peel to the waist, stand up against a cabinet contraption that contains the film.

breathe deep, hold it while the x-ray is taken and then walk back to the changing booth, which is much too small for a fat man.

When you're dressed again you return to the corridor, take a seat and wait until the doctor tells you what he thinks you should know as a result of the picture.

This is a preventive measure, you tell yourself. Nothing's wrong with you and there's no need to work up a temperature. It's just one of the sensible precautions a community takes against the possibility of an infection. And aren't you much better off even if you have a touch of tuberculosis, to know it early and nail the thing down before it makes headway?

RUN-AWAY IMAGINATION

That's where you should stop—at that stage of your TB thinking. But, if you're a merry little hypochondriac, like me, that's only the beginning.

The production of the plate takes a couple of minutes—or a little more. But the doctor who has to check it has other cases to look at as well as you. Still, after five or six minutes, you begin to wonder—if you've got the kind of imagination I have.

Seems to be taking a long time. What are they doing in there? Perhaps they've found something. Maybe that's why it's so hard for me to get up in the morning. Do you suppose that's the cause for the tired feeling I have? Lowered vitality, no pep. I've felt it coming on for some time.

Oh, well. Let's try to be cheerful about the thing. Modern science is wonderful and the way they've been making progress in this field. Heh, heh, nothing to it. Just a nice long rest.

Yeah, but what about the family? I got kids to raise and educate. Sure. Other people have had kids to raise and educate, too. They managed. Try to remember nobody's indispensable.

UGHTA QUIT SMOKING

Say, how'd I get into this line of thought? There's nothing wrong with me. Wouldn't hurt, though, if I cut out smoking. It's a crazy habit anyhow. Wouldn't be hard to break if a guy set his mind to it. Oh, sure, a little tough at the start, but think of how much better a person would feel without that first-of-the-morning taste. How much sharper his palate would be. Say, he might even be able to get the full scent of a flower again if he laid away pipe and tobacco.

Yeah, smoking's about as silly a thing as I do. It makes me short of wind, leaves me edgy when I run out of cigarettes, burns holes in my clothes when I use a pipe, and runs away with a lot of small change in the course of a year.

Yeah, it'd be a pretty good idea to cut it out. Then I'd have better wind and could exercise more. That'd cure the lousy feeling, I guess. Give me more zip and let me tone up some of those relaxed muscles that have been tightening the waist line of my trousers.

What's that? You call me, Doctor? Oh, you say there's nothing wrong? I'm in pretty good shape? X-ray's all right? Well, thanks, Doctor. Swell day out, isn't it?

Now where did I put those cigarettes? Left 'em in the car, I guess.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Bumping Off a Killer

LONDON—I felt as though I was back on the other side of the Atlantic. Here were the London afternoon papers with blaring headlines giving a running description of a man gone berserk with two guns... he had killed three and wounded nine... he had been hunted down to a beach... holiday-makers were cleared from the area as armed police moved in to take him... there was a gun battle as police traded shots with the man hiding behind a rock on the beach...

Reyburn

"Green was alone, ringed by armed men," read one of the stories. "He camouflaged himself in seaweed. There was a burst of fire from the cliffs: The sun touched on one barrel. It was held by a police marksman. Green fired 10 shots at his glinting target. Every bullet missed, and the ring was closing in."

"Suddenly Green kicked over on his side as a bullet struck his shoulder. Then another... and another. Green was dying. More shots passed his head. Green leaned on his elbow and, pointing his revolver at his chest, fired. The murder hunt was over. The killer lay dead in the sun."

This sort of news, not infrequent in the U.S. and Canada, is rare indeed here. And in this case it was not a Britisher being run to earth by armed British police, but a U.S. affair. Airman Napoleon Green from Chicago, about to stand trial on a charge of theft at a joint U.S.-British air station at Manston in Kent, shot at anybody who came in his path as he dashed from the base and was chased by armed U.S. air force to the beach near Broadstairs. Unarmed British police helped in the chase and were on hand at the finish.

These North American type goings-on could not help but bring home to me the basic difference between our approach over there and the British approach to such matters.

I got in touch with Scotland Yard to learn how the Green case would have been dealt with had it been primarily a British affair. On such a matter of policy they naturally weren't prepared to commit themselves. But bearing in mind similar British examples it would be safe to say that if the British had been in control this is what would have happened: with the man trapped at the end of the beach they would have sat it out until he eventually gave himself up or ended his own life—he would certainly not have been riddled with police bullets.

By coincidence the London papers are currently carrying the story of a policeman being shot while trying to make an arrest. The suspected assailant was captured—alive and unharmed.

Recently in the famous Craig-Bentley case, when a policeman was shot and killed as these armed teenagers were being chased, they were taken without either of them receiving anything approaching a bullet wound.

A few years back, when Donald Thomas killed P.C. Edgar, police surrounded the house in which he was taking refuge and as his landlady took in his breakfast they went in with her and captured him before he had a chance to bring his revolver into play again.

The armed chase climaxed the bumping off of the killer is a spectacular feature of North American police methods. Thankfully, except when performed by U.S. service police, it is not a popular pastime here.

OTTAWA RULING BOOSTS SPAN COST $2 MILLION

National Harbors Board has forced changes in the provincial government's plans for a Second Narrows bridge at Vancouver which will add $2,000,000 to the cost.

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi confirmed today that the Harbors Board and the federal government told B.C.'s Toll Bridges and Highways Authority to lengthen the space between the piers of the bridge.

"This will increase the cost of the bridge by a couple of million dollars," said Mr. Gagliardi.

Tenders for the bridge are scheduled to be called this week.

City Lawyer Eyes Saanich Reeveship

City lawyer J. Ronald Grant may seek the reeve's office of Saanich which has been held by Reeve Joseph Casey for three terms.

Reeve Casey has been unopposed in the last two elections but there are indications now of a three-way fight this December.

George Clayton, 2835 Gorge View Drive, says he is still a candidate but will consider withdrawing in favor of a candidate who could beat the reeve. Mr. Grant, president of Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal Association and past president of the Art Gallery, says his mind is not yet made up, but supporters believe he could win the seat.

TWO GRANTS

If he was elected it could have the effect of placing two Ronald Grants on Saanich council. Councillor Ronald Grant, naturopath, is also seeking re-election this year.

Five men are competing for three council seats. Councillors S. W. Brock, Leslie Passmore and Grant will seek re-election.

India's Menon Urges France To End Boycott of Assembly

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—India's V. K. Krishna Menon appealed to France today to end her boycott of the UN assembly and return for a debate on Algeria.

The Indian diplomat, winding up the assembly's general debate, expressed "deep regret" that the French had walked out. India was one of the 28 countries which voted over French opposition last Friday to inscribe the Algerian problem on the assembly's agenda and thus provoked the walkout.

"We are sincerely sorry," Menon said, "that a decision of this assembly should make this result in the French walkout. We hope that, with the assurances of our friendship and our great admiration, the French government will find it possible to take their place with us very soon."

Although India voted against the French in the assembly ballot to debate Algerian demands for independence, Nehru's government earlier had praised Paris for giving up the small colonies France established in India in the 17th century.

Following the decision to debate the Algerian issue, France called home her representatives at the assembly and then her permanent delegation to the UN. The French cabinet decided, however, to hold on to France's permanent "big power" seat on the Security Council and her place on the disarmament committee and subcommittee.

The French Monday had more bitter comment about the assembly's vote to take up Algeria. Jules Moch, delegate to the disarmament subcommittee, labelled the decision to debate the Algerian demands for independence "a flagrant violation of the charter the French government could not accept."

The French contend Algeria is a domestic matter—not a foreign holding subject to UN intervention—because under the constitution it is an integral part of France rather than a colony or protectorate.

Moch said the only reason he was continuing to serve on the disarmament subcommittee was "because the French government attaches such paramount importance to the question of disarmament."

The assembly rebuffed another colonial power Monday night, voting 31 to 18 to take up Indonesia's demands that The Netherlands give up Western New Guinea.

The Netherlands Foreign Minister J. M. H. A. Luns told reporters he regretted American failure to support his government on the issue. The United States was one of 10 powers abstaining on the New Guinea vote. Canada also abstained.

START WORKING

With the end of the general debate, the assembly committees are preparing to take on the major work load of the session.

The special political committee was to hold its first session

Jittery Lions Whipped Again

By British United Press

Winnipeg's Blue Bombers, the old contemptibles of the Western Football Conference, ranked as the hottest club in the league today and they were the only ones in the five-team circuit who didn't play Monday night.

Everybody else saw action. But none of the four other teams in the loop could match the Bombers' two-game winning streak.

The Calgary Stampeders, back at full strength again and playing at home, snapped a five-game losing skid by thrashing British Columbia's jittery Lions 18-6. In the other game, the league-leading Edmonton Eskimos rebounded from a 12-0 Saturday night defeat by Winnipeg to trim the second-place Saskatchewan Roughriders 17-9 at Edmonton.

The Edmonton-clash had no effect on the standings, but the other contest did. With the resurgent Bombers threatening their claim on the third and last playoff berth, the Lions had hooked up with last-place Calgary in what was for them a clutch game.

THIRD-PLACE TIE

Their failure to win cost them individual possession of the third rung in the standings and dropped them into a tie for the position alongside Winnipeg.

It also left the odds-makers favoring the Bombers over the west coast club for the stretch battle ahead. While the revitalized Winnipeggers had been beating their way back from the brink of elimination on the strength of four triumphs in their last six games, the faltering Lions could point only to three straight defeats in the last eight days.

Returnee quarterback Don Klosterman was the big gun in the Stampeders' victory.

Just off the shelf after being forced to miss two games through injuries, Klosterman fired three touchdown passes.

Ends Bill McKenna and Tom Miner and halfback Peter Muir caught the touchdown heaves, with Miner converting all three. The Stamps led 6-0 at quarter-time, boasted the same margin at the half and increased their lead to 12-0 in the third quarter.

LONE MAJOR

They added their third converted major in the fourth period, before half back Primo Villanueva cracked across the goal-line for the lone converted touchdown that marked British Columbia's only score of the night.

At Edmonton, a powerful ground attack led the Grey Cup champion Eskimos to their 11th victory in 12 league starts before a Clarke Stadium crowd of 18,000. The Eskis led 9-3 at the half and 16-3 at the end of the third quarter.

Quarterback Jackie Parker and fullback Normie (China Clipper) Kwong contributed touchdowns in the Edmonton cause. Tackle Bob Dean kicked two converts and a 43-yard field goal, and halfback Bob Heydenfeldt booted two singles. Saskatchewan's points were made up of a touchdown by halfback Ken Carpenter and a convert and field-goal by end Joe (The Toe) Aguirre.

Stamps Receive New Goaltender

WELLAND, Ont. (BUP)—Ray Frederick, regular goaltender for the Buffalo hockey Bisons during the last half of the 1954-55 American League season, today was sent to the Calgary club of the Western League.

The departure of Frederick, who had been hampered by injuries most of the training camp period, left the Bisons with three goaltenders to choose from for this coming season—Hank Bassen, who was Buffalo's goalie last season before being promoted to the parent Chicago Blackhawks; Bill Harrington and Marve Edwards.

At the same time, general manager Fred Hunt announced that centre Gord Pennell had been officially placed on the suspended list for leaving the Bisons' camp without permission.

"Okay, you win! Go bowling with the boys!"

Oak Bay Duo Defends City Golf Button

Dr. George Bigelow and Hugh Morrison, with a fine display of shotmaking, successfully made their fourth defence of the city senior golf buttons at Uplands Golf Club Sunday by defeating challengers Bob Fleming and John Merriman of George Valley 2 and 1.

The Oak Bay duo was six under par for 17 holes in the thrilling match.

Bigelow and Morrison held an early two up lead, but Fleming, with birdies on the 13th and 14th holes, squared the match.

Bigelow won the 15th with a birdie three after a 280-yard drive, and the short 16th was holed.

Morrison then ended the match on the 17th with another birdie three.

CITY CHES

T. N. Curteis and J. Hobson will meet in a semi-final match Friday in the Victoria City Chess Club ladder competition playoff. Curteis defeated R. R. Bennett to advance into the semi-final, while Hobson defeated O. Jowett.

Glenn's Confident He'll Enjoy Wings

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (CP)—Goalkeeper Glenn Hall of the Detroit Red Wings in the National Hockey League says "I'm going to like it up here."

"I've waited a long time to get this far," the baby-faced 23-year-old netminder said after a recent practice with the Stanley Cup champion Wings. Hall faces the unenviable task of replacing Terry Sawchuk in the Detroit nets this season.

Hall, a native of Humboldt, Sask., and an all-star last season with Edmonton of the Western Hockey League, went to the Wings in an off-season trade with Boston Bruins. "I hadn't expected anything like that trade," he said.

TOUGHER IN NHL

"I know playing in the NHL will be tougher. Every player up here can really fire that puck at you. They're more accurate, too. A goaltender's hardest save is on a screened shot, and if the drive is right on the corner, he hasn't much of a chance."

Glen says "Terry is the greatest goaltender I ever saw." But Detroit officials, particularly general manager Jack Adams, are high in their praise of the rookie.

"Glenn played eight games with us in the past," Adams said in an interview. "That was enough to prove that he belongs in this league." He has more confidence in Hall than they had in Sawchuk. He is just as good as Sawchuk was when Terry joined us in 1950.

Hall is having trouble with his weight. After a recent scrimmage, he was down to 156 pounds, 14 under his listed playing weight.

CEDAR HILL GOLF

Winner of the Cedar Hill Golf Club handicap championship was R. Clements, with W. H. Barnes winning the first flight, A. Hollingsworth the second flight, and A. Hodgson the third flight.

SUBURBAN BASKETBALL

Saanich and Suburban Basketball League will hold its annual general meeting at Brentwood Friday night at 8. Officers for the coming season will be elected. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

When Detroit decided that Sawchuk needed a rest, Hall was brought in again. In two road games he allowed only two goals and won both games. His play during the Duke of Edinburgh Trophy series last spring convinced the Wings that he was ready to make the jump into the NHL. Sawchuk was traded just as Harry Lumley stepped aside for Terry in 1950.

Five C's Win Cricket Title

Five C's won the Victoria and District Cricket Association knockout competition Sunday by defeating Oak Bay in the final at Beacon Hill Park by 18 runs.

Batting first, the winners ran up a total of 66 runs and dismissed Oak Bay for 48 runs.

Jim Richards, with six wickets for 13 runs, led the Five C's bowlers, while Jack Sparks took four wickets for 23 runs for Oak Bay. Sparks also led Oak Bay in batting, with 18 runs, while Alan Griffen batted the same total for the winners.

Pat Abbruzzi Tops Big Four Rushing

TORONTO (BUP)—Montreal half of the season, finally Alouettes' Pat (The Ram) Abbruzzi was the No. 1 man on the ground and Toronto's quarterback Tom Dublinski topped all passers today in the official weekly Big Four statistics.

Abbruzzi, the stubby left halfback from Rhode Island, who has averaged better than 100 yards each game, led all ground gainers with 633 yards on 89 attempts and a 7.1 average. Despite the fact that he hasn't scored a point in two weeks, Abbruzzi led in the scoring race with 45 points on the strength of nine touchdowns in his first four games. Ottawa's Bob Simpson was second with 40 points and Argonaut end Al Pfeifer, was third with 38 points. The import end from Fordham picked up 18 points on three touchdowns and three extra points.

Hamilton's Bucky McElroy, forced to sit out Saturday's game against Ottawa with an injury, trailed Abbruzzi in the rushing department with 469 yards and a 5.4 average. Two other Tiger-Cat backs, Lou Kusserow and Hal Waggoner, led down the third and fourth spots with 344 and 292 yards respectively. In all, the trio of hard running Hamilton backs have piled up 1,105 yards.

Dublinski, Toronto's new high-priced import quarterback, held a substantial lead over most passers. He led in attempts, 209; completions, 120; yardage gained, 1,921; touchdowns, 16, and interceptions, 19. Montreal's Sam Etcheverry was the next busiest tosser, completing 106 of 199 for 1,599 yards and 13 touchdowns.

Royal Romance on or Off? U.S. Weeklies Can't Agree

NEW YORK (CP)—Two United States weeklies have conflicting reports of the state of Princess Margaret's romance with Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

Time says the Queen has been asked to approve an announcement of their engagement. But Look says a secret family meeting in August resulted in the princess breaking off permanently with Townsend.

In its current issue, out Wednesday, Time says Princess Margaret, who made a flying trip to Balmoral Castle last week, took for the Queen's approval a statement carefully prepared by the lord chancellor announcing the engagement.

Time says its report came from an "official source" and that only a few high British officials know the statement's precise contents.

Look, quoting "an anonymous source close to the Royal Family," says the meeting at which Princess Margaret agreed to end the romance was held at Balmoral just before her 25th birthday and that the Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh, the Queen Mother and the Princess Royal all pressed her to give up the divorced Second World War RAF hero.

ABDUCTION RECALLED

Look describes Margaret's aunt, the Princess Royal, now visiting Canada, as the most adamant against the marriage.

GRAHAM PACKS 20,000 INTO OTTAWA PARK

OTTAWA (CP)—Billy Graham, on a one-day visit to the capital, Monday night preached Christ to some 20,000 persons in Lansdowne Park.

The tall United States evangelist told an audience that packed the grandstand and almost filled the football field that man is suffering from a disease of the soul called sin.

"We don't like to admit it. We don't like to talk about it. But it is there," he said.

Speaking from a platform on the centre-field stripe, he added, however, that because "Christ took our sins to the Cross" God can heal the soul of this disease.

After his sermon 687 persons filed down to a space in front of the platform to make their "decisions for Christ."

IN 'SHEENA OF THE JUNGLE'

Maxie Will Pummel Crocs and Gorillas

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Max Baer used to pummel Jim Braddock and Primo Carnera in championship fights while the crowds roared, but today he donned a pith helmet for another kind of battle.

Barrel-chested Maxie announced from now on he's going to trade punches with crocodiles and gorillas on the nation's television screens.

The last time he faced a camera was for "Skipalong Rosenbloom."

He also appeared in various other pictures down the years, including "Africa Screams." In recent years he's been a TV disc jockey and sports commentator in Oakland and his home town of Sacramento.

He lives in Sacramento because "I wanted to raise my three kids, my cub bears, up there, and besides I like to emcee the governor's banquets."

540-Mile Toronto-Chatham New Non-Stop Walking Mark

CHATHAM, Ont. (UP)—Twenty-four-year-old Robert Mendt sat down Monday for the first time in seven days after walking non-stop from Montreal.

He wore out seven pairs of shoes while trudging for 175 hours over 540 miles of high-ways.

Mendt looked like a drugged man when he limped into the city limits. He was immediately taken to a hospital where doctors said he would be fine after a good rest, and let him go.

The Czech immigrant finished the last few miles in pain after he was struck by the back

$120,000 Suit Faces Leaders Of Tragic Climb

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—A $120,000 damage suit has been filed in U.S. district court here accusing Camp Tour organizers of negligence in a Canadian mountain climb that killed seven boys on July 11.

The suit was filed Monday by the administrators of the estate of William H. Wise II, 15, who was fatally injured when the party of nine was caught in an avalanche on Mt. Temple near Banff, Alberta Province.

O. D. Dickerson, a university instructor, and William Kershaw, teacher in a private school, also were named in the suit, which alleged that they were partners in "organizing, maintaining, conducting and supervising Camp Tours for Boys."

The suit charged that Dickerson "negligently and without proper precaution permitted the decedent and other boys to attempt to climb Mt. Temple without proper or adequate supervision."

Dickerson was in charge of the Canadian expedition, while Kershaw headed another group of youngsters on a New England tour.

Two Rings, 45 Years Apart, But This Time They'll Wed

KNARESBOROUGH, York, England (CP)—Lily Jepson has been engaged twice—once at 20 and again at 65.

It was the same man both times, and Miss Jepson is going through with her wedding this time. The groom is Richard Harland, who left Lily behind in 1913 when he went to Calgary. But she changed her mind about following him.

Last month, Harland came back to visit relatives in a nearby town. The wife he subsequently married in Canada has been dead for two years. He decided to call on Miss Jepson because "I never forgot her."

"At first I didn't recognize him," she recalls. "But I accepted him at his second proposal."

The couple are to wed Oct. 15 and will live at Knareborough.

White, Negro Jailed For Getting Married

ABINGDON, Va. (UP)—Lee Smith, 49, white, and Willie Mae Rayan Smith, 50, Negro, today faced five-year prison terms for being married in violation of Virginia miscegenation laws.

They were married in Toledo, Ohio, last summer and moved into the woman's home in a Negro section of Abingdon. They were convicted and sentenced Monday in the Washington County circuit court.

Police testified the couple, both of Abingdon, rode to Toledo in a taxi for the marriage and returned to live here. Judge T. L. Hutton denied a motion for a new trial.

Edwin H. Schloss, music critic for the Philadelphia Inquirer, hailed his performance as the "most triumphant debut played in the Academy of Music in many decades."

Schloss said it was not too long before the audience "realized it was listening to one of the greatest virtuosos of our time."

Last night's visitor not only plays the piano superbly, but he makes music magnificently—something that cannot always be said for the greatest keyboard technicians.

Helis' Helioscope Retired to Stud

MAYS LANDING, N.J. (UP)—Helioscope, one of the nation's outstanding thoroughbreds, was retired to stud duty today by his owner, William G. Helis Jr.

The four-year-old handicap star, who was purchased by Helis as a yearling for $17,000, finished out of the money only twice in 25 starts.

BANDS GALORE PLAY TONIGHT

The 12th annual "Bands of Bands" will be held tonight in the Crystal Garden, with 16 bands participating, using both ballrooms.

Proceeds go to the musicians' union benevolent fund. Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Rea Charges Discrimination By CBC-TV

NEW WESTMINSTER (BUP)—New charges of "bureaucratic discrimination" were leveled against the CBC television network last night by William Rea, owner-president of radio station CKNW here, when Rea was refused paid time on Vancouver TV station CBTU to advertise his radio operation.

He was told, he said, that his service was not of the type acceptable to the CBC. Rea said the television network accepted advertising for the yellow pages of the telephone directory and said his service was of a similar nature. Rea said Vancouver CBC officials still refused to talk business with him.

He said he had contacted two television stations in Seattle and one in Bellingham, Wash., and all had agreed to accept his advertising. He planned a series of spot announcements to bring the story of radio in general, and CKNW in particular, to TV viewers.

"I feel," said Rea, "that this could be construed as a direct attempt to restrain trade."

Soviet Pianist In Triumphant American Debut

Gilels Labeled
One of Greatest

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Emil Gilels, Russia's most outstanding pianist, launched his American concert tour with the Philadelphia orchestra Monday night and quickly captured his audience.

Gilels, the first major Russian musical artist to visit the United States since Serge Prokofiev in 1921, received thunderous applause for his interpretation of the concerto in B-flat minor by his compatriot Tchaikovsky. He encored with prelude in B minor by Bach and the Mendelssohn scherzo in E minor.

The 39-year-old stockily-built pianist appeared calm and assured as he sat at the keyboard before the orchestra, which prior to rehearsal he had heard only on records.

Most Triumphant

Edwin H. Schloss, music critic for the Philadelphia Inquirer, hailed his performance as the "most triumphant debut played in the Academy of Music in many decades."

Schloss said it was not too long before the audience "realized it was listening to one of the greatest virtuosos of our time."

Last night's visitor not only plays the piano superbly, but he makes music magnificently—something that cannot always be said for the greatest keyboard technicians.

Bandaged Fingers

Gilels, who speaks no English, appeared at an interview earlier in the day wearing adhesive bandages on several fingertips. Through interpreters, he said he blistered his fingers rehearsing with the orchestra in the morning. His hands apparently were fit by concert time, however.

The pianist was accompanied by his wife, Farizat, who composes music. She had been a pupil at the Moscow conservatory where he teaches. Their only child, Elena, seven, attends a school for musically talented children.

PATRICE MUNSEL

Opera Star Bumps, Jives In Pink Pants

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—Patrice Munsel, the glamor girl of the Metropolitan Opera, made her nightclub debut in a Las Vegas gambling emporium Monday night, doing the bumps and grinds in tight pink pants.

Patrice followed in the well-heeled footsteps of Marguerite Piazza, Helen Traubel and other opera stars who have stepped from the dignity of the Met to try jive on the saloon circuit.

"I'm returning to New York to open at the Metropolitan in November," the slender singer said.

"I don't know why people think that opera singers are without humor. I think the movies have done it. When they satire opera they put in a fat soprano and most people think that's all opera singers are."

Aly, Rita Drink Champagne At Midnight Tete a Tete

PARIS (UP)—Prince Aly Khan began his second courtship of actress Rita Hayworth today with a midnight champagne supper and an hours-long tete a tete behind the drawn curtains of her hotel suite.

The dashing prince told friends he planned to woo the red-haired actress with a full schedule of theatre plays, night clubs and ballets and a side trip to the Eiffel Tower for young Princess Yasmín, their daughter.

Aly was almost ecstatic over his daughter when Rita showed him the child sleeping in a hotel room converted into a nursery.

"She's terrific, simply wonderful," Aly cried. "I can hardly wait for her to wake up and play with me."

Both Rita and Aly were smiling and happy after their first

Queen's Quintette Dapper But Different

Four former lieutenant-governors who attended the swearing in at Government House Monday of Hon. Frank M. Ross as B.C.'s 19th lieutenant-governor, and the incumbent himself, staged a show of sartorial elegance that would do Saville Row proud. All were different, but all were correct.

Mr. Banks wore matching medium-grey tail coat and trousers and a lighter colored vest, accepted formal attire for summer, and a grey top hat.

Except for the stripe in their trousers, Mr. Hamber and Mr. Ross wore identical attire of dark tail coat, dark vest, and dark striped trousers.

Mr. Wallace varied the Hamber-Ross ensemble with a light-colored vest, and Mr. Woodward wore the standard suit-length jacket with his striped trousers which is regular attire in the directors' board room.

The male guests, apart from the military, also wore garb in sombre morning suits; most wore bowties; some spats. Aides to the lieutenant-governor were swordless, but ranking military men present wore sabres, and showed a tendency to lean on them while standing, somewhat like shooting sticks.

Top hats were deposited, bottoms up, on a smoothly shining table just within the door of Government House. Into the top hat, Mr. Ross dropped his gloves. He was the only male present noted with them.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

As this is written (on the back of a losing ticket in yesterday's pool) there is no way of knowing who will be the winner of the world series of baseball in New York.

But I can tell you the winner of the world series of baseball in OUR house.

The winner and still champion—My Favorite Wife.

When I came home yesterday, after a hard day at the office slaving over a hot typewriter, I greeted My Favorite Wife by asking her for twenty-five cents.

"Whatever for?" MFW asked. "I gave you 25 cents only this morning."

I wish to buy a ticket in the office pool on the world series, I said.

"But you have already bought six tickets and you haven't won yet," MFW protested.

I know, I said, but the last game is the most important of all, I said. It is a crucial game, I said. In fact, the winner of this one game will also be the winner of the series, I said.

"Oh?" oh'd MFW, showing interest. "Do you mean to say they have played six games and yet the one game will decide the winner?"

That's what I mean to say, I said.

"Then why did they bother playing the other six games?" MFW asked. "Why didn't they just play the one game?"

Because it is a best of seven series, I said.

"No, it can't be a best of seven series," MFW said. "Because one isn't the best of seven."

Where does "one" come in, I asked.

"You said yourself the one game will decide the series," MFW said. "And the series is a best of seven series. But one isn't the best of seven. So the whole thing is illegal, and I think I will get an injunction against the Brooklyn and the New Yorks and have the whole thing declared unconstitutional."

Before you do that, I asked meekly, could I please have twenty-five cents to buy a ticket in the office pool on the world series.

"Oh, all right then," said MFW, graciously. "But only on one condition."

What condition, I asked.

"You must promise me you will win," MFW said.

Buddy, can you spare a quarter for a world series pool ticket?

MRS. LILY WILSON

Woman Enters City Council Election Race

Mrs. Lily Wilson, runner-up in last year's city council election, daughter of former alderman Mrs. Margaret Christie, announced today she will try again to win a council seat in December.

She will announce her platform at a later date, but generally will adhere to the principles expressed in her 1954 campaign.

"There is need for a woman's viewpoint on council. The council is not representative of Victorians if there is no woman member," she said.

MOTHER'S TRADITION

She repeated her aim is to serve the community to the best of her ability, in the tradition set by her mother in many years of civic service.

Alderman Christie retired from politics when her term ended last December.

Mrs. Wilson was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, and came here with her parents in time to gain most of her education locally. She taught at George Jay School and married the principal, W. H. Wilson, in 1922.

Mr. Wilson later was principal of Sir James Douglas until his retirement in 1951. He taught previously at a number of other Victoria schools.

The Wilsons have two daughters, one a teacher, the other married. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are well known in PTA circles and Mrs. Wilson is a past president of the Women's Canadian Club.

MURDOCH OUT?

Aldermen G. I. Edgelow, B. W. Murdoch, W. F. Pinfold and M. H. Mooney complete their two-year terms of office this year. None has made an official announcement of intent to run again or retire from office, although Ald. Murdoch has indicated pressure of business likely will force his retirement from council.

The mayoralty will be contested by Mayor Claude Harrison, city restaurant owner Elmer D. McEwen and city second-hand store owner, W. A. Scott.

The only other non-council member to announce candidacy for aldermanic office is former police commissioner Joe North. He will also seek the office of police commissioner.

Broad hints by Mayor Claude Harrison that he is negotiating with Ottawa and Victoria with the two senior governments which this will interfere with," the memo read.

He said the mayor has asked for federal aid in the construction of a new Point Ellice bridge. "But the federal government hasn't shown any indication of assistance in that matter."

The same held true of the mayor's request for a subsidy for shipping service between Victoria and Port Angeles, he said.

GAGLARDI CLAIMS BIG SAVING IN 'BURNING' B.C. BRIDGES

B.C. Highways Department bridge elimination program, started in 1951, will have completely removed more than eight miles of bridges from the province's highway network by the end of the current fiscal year.

Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi released figures today showing 854 bridges will have been replaced by fills and culverts by the end of this year.

Mr. Gagliardi said the elimination program, based on "a conservative estimate of $4 per lineal foot," will save the province $200,000 annually. That sum would have been expended on maintenance of the bridges.

Plans for Hospital Dropped in Saanich

Chamber Group Claims BCHIS Discouraged Peninsula Project

Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of a proposed 50-bed hospital to serve the northern part of Saanich peninsula, has "washed its hands" of the entire scheme.

On the motion of hospital committee chairman W. F. Grafton, the chamber Monday night decided to shelve the proposal which started enthusiastically several months ago and ended indifferently because of conflicting opinions as to the necessity of such a project.

Mr. Grafton explained that he and his committee, R. L. Desmond and Dr. Herman B. Wood, had interviewed officials of the BCHIS repeatedly, and although given an attentive hearing, had been discouraged in their efforts to get the hospital scheme started.

The committee had been informed that with $2,500,000 allocated by the government for new hospital construction annually, and with 10 other districts in B.C. seeking hospital grants, there was little likelihood of getting favorable action for some time to come.

Mr. Desmond expressed regret that the hospital plan had failed to meet with official approval.

"We were discouraged," he said of the interviews held with BCHIS officials. "It seemed we were merely ramming our heads against a brick wall."

Gulf Area to Get New Car Ferry

'No Interference' Pledge Given Firm by Gagliardi

Gulf Islands Navigation Ltd. will order construction of a new ferry to service the gulf following assurance today from Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi there will be no government interference.

R. O. New, head of Coast Ferries, which is connected with Gulf Islands Navigation, said Mr. Gagliardi's assurance is "just what we've been waiting for."

He said the firm's expansion plans include construction of a new ferry, and possible construction of permanent facilities at Steveston.

Mr. Gagliardi's promise of "no interference" came late Monday, following a conference with officials of the Gulf Islands Improvement Bureau.

The bureau delegation confronted the highways minister with the results of a secret ballot taken in the islands. Pender Island residents did not vote.

Four questions asked by the ballot and the votes were:

1. Are you in favor of a subsidized car ferry to Vancouver Island? 180.

2. Are you in favor of general freight and passenger service to the mainland? 403.

3. Which of these two services would you prefer if you were faced with the choice of one or the other?

Subsidized car ferry to Vancouver Island, 114.

General freight and passenger service to the mainland, 391.

OPEN AREA

"If some ferry company is prepared to go in and give the service these people have indicated they want—and I have assurances there is such a company—I will be happy to declare the whole area open to that company," said Mr. Gagliardi.

He said the assurance had come from Coast Ferries, Ltd., which operates the "Lady Rose" between Steveston and several Gulf Island points.

Mr. Gagliardi said a single firm providing mainland-Gulf Islands service without subsidy would be assured of "no government interference through subsidies."

Mr. Gagliardi said Coast Ferries had also indicated it would "be prepared to decrease the rates if and when the volume of traffic warrants."

"It looks to me like a clear-cut solution to the whole contentious problem," he said.

The scramble for the Gulf Islands' ferry service started with the withdrawal of the Canadian Pacific's service, which had operated for many years.

TENDER CALL

First immediate step in the minister's plan will come with the calling for tenders for service to Swartz Bay and Fulford Harbor, and between Vesuvius and Crofton.

Government officials said subsidized service on these runs will expire Dec. 31.

Gulf Islands Ferries now operate the "Cy Peck" on these runs, with a total subsidy of $36,000.

Gulf Islands Navigation is not interested in these runs, said Mr. New, but wanted only the assurance the government would not extend subsidized ferry service in the islands.

Otherwise, his firm was prepared to withdraw completely.

Gulf Islands Navigation will be allowed to service vital Pender Island.

Mr. New said the ballot and its results does not mean Gulf Islands Navigation will not run through to Sidney. He said the firm intends to continue to operate between Steveston on the mainland, and Sidney on the Island.

Mill Engineers Still Voting On Strike Threat

Balloting was still incomplete at noon in a strike vote being conducted among 25 power-house engineers and firemen at four local mills.

It was not expected that results of the vote would be released by the Labor Relations Board before next Monday.

Voting will start at four up-Island mills Wednesday. The Operating Engineers' Union (AFL) has been offered a five-cent-an-hour boost, which was accepted by the IWA. The union has been seeking a 10-per-cent increase.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—1. Was Elk Lake so named because of the presence of elk in the vicinity? 2. If so, when were they last seen? 3. Did they migrate or were they killed?—E.M.W.

A.—There were elk, or wapiti, on this island when the first white men came, as there were on adjacent islands and on the Olympic Peninsula. It is entirely possible that the lake was named after the deer, though this column is not aware of any record in written history. If a body of water thus derived its name it is likely that ahead of the spread of the white man's settlements the animals retreated into the forest fastnesses, where they are still to be found in areas of Vancouver Island. Under B.C. game laws, there was a limited open season last year and there is again this year, the dates being Oct. 8 to 12.

Q.—Who was Johnstone Strait named after, and when?—G.C.M.

A.—It was named by Vancouver in 1792 in honor of James Johnstone, R.N. master of the armed tender Chatham.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Hospitals Observe Wonder Drug Week

Nurse Lily Golik of Nelson was first to visit Jubilee Hospital exhibit in honor of International Pharmacy Week which started Monday. Importance of drugs is most startling development in medicine in recent years, officials say. The vial being examined by nurse contains a solution of vitamin B12—used in anaemia treatment. The main ingredient is valued at $3,000 an ounce.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Keep Wispy Locks in Place For Smart, Tailored Look

By PENNY SAVER

Hey there! You gals with long hair... having trouble keeping your chignon neat and smooth? Perhaps you're using the wrong sized holder. You can buy featherweight plastic elasticized mesh chignons in shades of brown to match your locks. Just pull your hair into a pony-tail, slip the chignon over it and gradually tuck the hair around its round edges until every little wisp is where you want it. This little wonder is just 49 cents. As I said, it's elasticized, so that whether your hair is thick or very wispy and silky, it will clasp it tightly and keep it in one place.

Foam pillows are pretty much standard items in most homes. Also there are shells that now, but, of course, it's impossible to please everyone, and are in individual sizes, and sell smooth foam rubber. Well, how at 15 cents for two. They're made about feathered foam filling for of lightweight aluminum. It's the pillows! You can feel the bits fun to dress up common, every-day foods with gelatin preparations. A package of gelatin, made by well-known, established manufacturers, costs just 25 cents... and it holds four packages. Try it for something a little different.

Call me at 2-3131 and I'll let you in on the whereabouts of the little charmers I run across in town.

Are the bedroom and dressing room shoe bags showing signs of wear? Perhaps the edges are tearing a bit or the sides are strained from damp soles. For just 98 cents, you can replace the old ones with bright and cheery cotton ones with plastic binding. Just where the soles and heels would rub the edges, they're covered with plastic, so that you can just dip and suds the whole works. These will hold six pairs in each bag. Green, blue, yellow and pastel colors are all displayed, ready for any color scheme.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Today's Woman Must Be A Wizard—A Lovely One

Honestly being a woman today seems much more complicated than it once was! Women did not have so many household aids and modern conveniences years ago but they had more help at home and not so much was expected of them.

If grandmother ran her house well, was a gracious hostess, managed to smile frequently, did beautiful handwork and trained the children into reasonably good manners, she was a success.

Today a woman is supposed to do all that and much more. She also is expected to be a comforting and gay companion for her children and husband at all times, to be a success on the dance floor and at the bridge table and be well informed concerning world affairs. She is supposed to be a leader in her community, in club work, church work and the PTA.

She must look like something out of a fashion magazine and yet be a wizard when it comes to economy, child psychology and food chemistry. The amazing thing is that so many women do all of these things, and some of them hold down a job at the same time.

Also, in the midst of all of this she is expected to look lovely, and staying lovely looking is not a part time job. Yet we do have many electrical devices which are time-saving and many beauty aids which grandmother never dreamed of. Therefore, if we take advantage of simple beauty routines and mechanical aids we have a chance.

Even with these, however, we must weed out some activities if we are to survive in health or sanity and if we are to have any time for ourselves at all. We should weigh the manner in which we spend our energy even more carefully than the way we spend our money.

Energy, which is life itself, must be spent in ways which enrich life and have individual meaning for us. This is not a selfish philosophy.

Unless we protect ourselves to some degree we are hollow shells without nearly so much to give to others as we could have had. Women become entangled in routine until they often do not know why they are doing what they are doing.

Most important in protecting energy is to cut out many of the small leaks which count up to such a big total. Spend no energy on small petty sentiments; on resentment, jealousy, envy, self pity. Life is too short! Cut out leaks in energy also by organizing your housework, by thinking ahead, by getting enough sleep, exercise and relaxation.

Some persons are born with more energy than others but the larger must be restocked even in the case of the man or woman who is endowed by nature with a superlative drive. Otherwise, physical, emotional, spiritual and mental disaster are certain to follow. Tomorrow: "Lead With Your Chin and You'll Get Neck Trouble."

Barbara Cross Wed at Home Amid Relatives and Friends

Rev. Douglas B. Carr performed the wedding ceremony which united in marriage Miss Barbara Anne Cross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Cross, 728 Selkirk Avenue, and Ronald Vernon Shea, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert B. Shea, 1024 Pembroke Street. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, where standard baskets of gold and white chrysanthemums formed the background. Oliver R. Stout played traditional wedding music.

The lovely dark-haired bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a bridal gown of white lace over tulle, fashioned with a full circular skirt in ballerina length, and a bodice dotted with lace daisies and studded with rhinestones. A tulle line lace jacket with long lily-point sleeves and a stand-up collar topped her gown. Tiny matching lace daisies and rhinestones were also seen on her bridal cap and waist length veil. To complete her ensemble, the bride carried a cascade bouquet of white feathered chrysanthemums.

Miss Mary Lou Cross was maid of honor for her sister, in a champagne-toned nylon net over tulle gown, fashioned with full circular ballerina length skirt. Metallic gold flowers were applied on the fitted bodice, which was topped with a matching jacket. She wore a crescent shaped headpiece encrusted with champagne-toned velvet flowers, and carried a cascade bouquet of golden chrysanthemums.

Adoption Is Very Risky, Except Through Agency

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

Adopting a baby, except through strictly supervised and carefully controlled channels, is very risky business. I pointed that out to the woman who wrote:

(Q)—"We have been married for 11 years and the doctor gives us very little hope of ever having any children. I have heard that a number of nice girls get into trouble, and I am wondering if I might arrange through my doctor or minister to get a baby whose mother has to give him up. Getting a baby through an agency is so hard and it takes so long. My husband would be willing to pay the mother's medical expenses and give her some money to get started afresh if we could take her baby. Some of my friends tell me this is a bad way to get a baby, but I don't see why. Can you explain why I should not do it this way?"—Mrs. J. R.

(A)—Getting a baby, except through an adoption agency, is very risky and should be avoided at all costs. Even if you are anxious to adopt a baby, and are impatient about the time it would take, it is still far better than what you would like to do. If the mother knew who you were, and there was no legal procedure to guarantee that she would not try to take her baby back, you might be forced with a very difficult problem. She could easily come back for more money and threaten to take her baby back unless you paid her what she demanded.

Then, too, she might marry and want to have her child as her "adopted" baby. She could take the case to court and try to force you to give up the infant. Even if she did not win the case, there would still be unfortunate publicity which would bring out the fact that the baby was illegitimate. This would make the baby's future very difficult, both for him and you.

The problem of the baby itself must also be considered. When you get a baby from an adoption agency, the baby has had every possible physical and mental test and his family background has been carefully checked, at least on the mother's side.

You are not given an opportunity to adopt a baby who is not physically and mentally sound. Should you make your own arrangements, you would have no such check. You might find, after adopting a child, that he has some serious physical or mental handicap, but it would then be too late to do anything about it.

Send your problem to Elizabeth Hurlock, in care of this newspaper.

"F99" SKIN TROUBLES

Eczema, Leg Ulcers, Baby's Rash

Painful and disfiguring skin complaints, even of many years duration, need not be endured. "F99" has proven so outstandingly successful, no person presently suffering from these distressing complaints should neglect undergoing treatment. Even delicate babies' skin, raw from chafing and similar causes, is instantly soothed and protected by "F99".

Discovered in Switzerland after years of extensive research, "F99" has since played such an important part in the treatment of eczema and other skin complaints, a specially processed concentrate is being shipped to all parts of the world.

"F99" is the only product that contains the two vital substances for the skin—Linoleic and Linolenic Acids, commonly referred to as "Unsaturated Fatty Acids."

Your skin, like many other parts of the body, depends upon certain nutrients derived from the food we eat. When the system is incapable of extracting these all-important nutrients, illness inevitably results. In the case of an "Unsaturated Fatty Acid" deficiency, the normal functions of the skin are hindered and ugly sores develop.

To offset this deficiency, "F99" contains the "Unsaturated Fatty Acids" in Capsulated form for internal use and, additionally, in Ointment and Lotion form for external application. Treatment with "F99", therefore, affords both internal and external absorption.

We in Canada are fortunate in having a fully equipped laboratory exclusively for the production of the "F99" products—so supplies are available through all Drug Stores from Victoria, B.C., to St. John's, Newfoundland. Consult your Druggist today about the "F99" Products and get a free illustrated booklet, or write to: SPRINGWOOD PRODUCTS LIMITED, Sarnia, Ont., B.C.

Visitors in Victoria

Among guests in Victoria are Mr. and Mrs. Preston McKinney Jr., who were married recently, and are spending their honeymoon in this city. Mrs. McKinney, women's club editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, was formerly a newspaper woman in England, where she worked on the Home Counties newspaper in Luton. She also worked on the Johannesburg Star in South Africa and worked with the BBC in London. After a time with the London New Chronicle in Washington, D.C., she moved to San Francisco. Mr. and Mrs. McKinney are guests at the Olde England Inn, and will travel up-island later this week to do some fishing.

Charming Miss Brenda Turner, daughter of Mrs. Ross, was an interested spectator at the ceremony. With her is Mrs. Henry Cornwall whose husband was born in Government House during the time his uncle, Hon. Charles Francis Cornwall, was Lieutenant-Governor.

Standing with their husbands during swearing-in ceremony of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Monday morning were four former chateaines of Government House. They were among the first to

Brilliant Color, Traditional Ceremony Marks Inauguration

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Tradition, ceremony and protocol were mixed together in an intriguing manner, Monday morning at Government House when Frank Mackenzie Ross was sworn in as British Columbia's 19th lieutenant-governor. There was the proclamation read by Cmdr. Gar Dixon, Government House secretary; the promises made by the lieutenant-governor as he bowed his head and kissed the bible; the presentation of the Great Seal of the province which was returned immediately to Hon. Wesley Black, Provincial Secretary and Minister of Municipal Affairs, "for safe keeping." There was also the intimate scene when Mrs. Ross stepped forward to shake hands with her husband and then to stand at his side during the formal introduction of the guests. First, Mrs. Gordon McG. Sloan, wife of the Hon. Chief Justice of British Columbia who has been acting as Administrator of the province since Hon. Clarence Wallace and Mrs. Wallace retired at the end of August. Next, the members of the provincial cabinet and their wives, led by Acting Premier Hon. Eric Martin and Mrs. Martin. Then the other guests, including friends of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor from Vancouver and finally the aides-de-camp and their wives.

Newspaper pictures and television movies were taken, radio speeches taped. In a matter of an hour the inauguration of a new Lieutenant-Governor was over and the occasion was part of history.

Uniforms and Feminine Gowns Add Highlights

From a purely feminine point of view the scene was a symphony of color. Arrangements of brilliantly colored autumn flowers formed the background and the ensembles of the feminine guests added the highlights. There were the bright red dress uniforms of officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the dress uniforms of navy, army and air force, worn by the aides de camp, to add a dash of elegance.

Mrs. Ross wore a black Patou-Paquin original of fine black wool, outlined at the neckline with diagonal rows of braid. A small ermine choker and matching turtleneck hat with pearl necklace and white orchid corsage completed her ensemble.

A black velvet suit was the choice of Mrs. Clarence Wallace, worn with a smart beaver fur sailor in taupe tones, pearl jewelry and her silver mink cape. A smartly styled suit of fine brown wool was worn by Mrs. Banks with mink cape and small hat of rust, gold and brown trimmed with a long pheasant-feather.

A large carmine red sailor hat with flat tailored bow was a perfect complement for the black velvet suit worn by Mrs. Woodward with a silver mink cape and pearl jewelry. Black was the choice of Mrs. Hamber, who wore a classically cut suit with sable furs and small gold satin hat.

First hostess duty for Mrs. Ross was the luncheon which followed the inauguration ceremony. Arranged in buffet style with small tables set in the lovely gold and crimson ballroom (the first time a luncheon has been arranged in the ballroom) the affair was informal and friendly.

Takes Place With Other Charming Women

With that luncheon Mrs. Ross joined a small but select group of outstanding women who have been chateaines—first at Cary Castle and later, after the castle burned down, at Government House. First there was Mrs. Kennedy, wife of Arthur Kennedy, Governor of Vancouver's Island, and Mrs. Seymour, wife of Frederick Seymour, who was governor in 1866 when British Columbia and Vancouver Island became one.

Julia Elizabeth Trutch, an American by birth, was hostess when her husband, Sir Joseph Trutch, was lieutenant-governor from 1871 until 1875. Mrs. Albert Norton Richards, Mrs. Clement Francis Cornwall and Mrs. Hugh Nelson followed.

Then came the dainty and petite Mrs. Edgar Dewdney, born in Ceylon and a friend of Lady Macdonald, wife of Sir John A. Macdonald. Mrs. Dewdney was followed by Mrs. Thomas Robert McInnes and she in turn by Lady Lotbiniere, wife of Sir Henri Joli Lotbiniere.

In 1906 Mrs. Dunsmuir, daughter of an Illinois planter, came to Government House with her husband, Sir James Dunsmuir. She was followed by Emma Elizabeth Riley, only

WHY JOHNNY CAN'T READ

Parents Should Teach 5-Year-Olds to Read

By RUDOLF FLESCH

You are a mother or a father. Your child—or your children—have trouble with reading. What can you do about it?

My advice is, teach your child yourself how to read—at the age of 5.

If you start in the fall of the year when your child is 5, you have a whole year to do the job before the school can do any damage to your child's mental habits. What's stopping you? Do it yourself—and the problem will be solved once and for all. You say your child isn't ready at the age of 5? Don't be ridiculous. Are you trying to tell me that your child is inferior to every single child "born" and brought up in Great Britain?

You say you haven't got the time? I don't believe it. Of course you have the time. You have the time to play with your child, haven't you? Play a little reading with him. Reading at the age of 5 is nothing but a game.

You say you are not up to the job? Yes, you are. Let me show you how it's done.

HOW TO START

You start with the letters and what they stand for. Go very slow. Take weeks or even months for that first step. Make quite sure your child knows that A means the first sound in apple. M means mmmmmmm. S means sssssss.

When he does know, and can also write each of the letters he has learned, start with three-letter words, containing the short vowels. Go on from there. Be patient: Always wait until your child has fully mastered the last lesson before you go on to the next. Always combine reading and writing: If it takes more time to do it that way, take more time. You have a whole year; a whole year is an enormously long time in the life of a five-year-old.

You don't have to wait a whole year, though, before you can give your child stories to read. Let him learn how it feels to read; if you teach him phonics right along, he won't be confused by "unphonetic" words like was and done.

TRY THESE STORIES

What stories should be read at this stage? Obviously not the Dick-and-Jane or Alice-and-Jerry type of thing. Rather, give him the classic stories that have always been enjoyed by small children—nursery tales, simple fairy tales, animal fables.

Give him "The Old Woman and Her Pig," "The Cat and the Mouse," "Henny Penny," "The Gingerbread Boy," "The Three Little Pigs," "The Three Billy Goats Gruff."

Probably the process will not take a whole year. Chances are that by spring your child will be a pretty good reader.

Then you'll be faced by a problem hardly any American parent has any more: the problem of how to quench your child's thirst for books. But it's not really a difficult problem: just give him the books parents usually read aloud to children of his age.

And later, as he grows up, give him the books children of his age have always liked: fairy tales, mythology, adventure stories, Stevenson, Mark Twain, Poe... he'll be all right; just turn him loose in a public library, and let him take over his own education.

A GOOD PRIMER

What primer should you use? The best available book for the purpose is "Reading With Phonics" by Julie Hay and Charles E. Wingo. You can get it for $2.40 from J. B. Lippincott Company, 333 West Lake Street, Chicago 6, Ill. To my knowledge, it is the only available American phonetic primer.

If, at the time you are reading this, your child is in first, second or third grade, proceed according to the same plan, with suitable adaptations. Get the Hay-Wingo book and give your child home lessons in phonics, fortifying him as much as possible against the word guessing he is exposed to in school.

Beginning with fourth grade, however, your procedure should be somewhat different. By that time your child will doubtless have become a confirmed, inveterate word guesser.

To begin with, let's try to isolate Johnny from his word-guessing environment. While he is in school, that is difficult or almost impossible. So the best thing will be to work with him during summer vacations. Let him stop all reading—all attempts to read. Explain to him that now he is going to learn how to read, and that for the time being, books are out. All he'll get for several months are lessons in phonics.

TELL HIM WHY

This, incidentally, is important. Take him fully into your confidence and explain to him exactly what you are trying to do. Tell him that you are going to do something new with him—something entirely different from what his teachers did in school. Tell him that this is certain to work. Convince him that as soon as he has taken this medicine he will be cured.

Then start him on the phonics exercises. At this age the Hay-Wingo book would probably arouse his antagonism. So give him the only other book of that type that I know "Remedial Reading Drills" by Thorleif G. Hegge, Samuel A. Kirk, and Winifred D. Kirk (George Wahr Publishing Company, Ann Arbor, Mich., $1.50). Go with him through the drills, one by one, always making sure that he has mastered the previous one before you go on to the next.

Only when you are through—or almost through—with the drills and exercises, start him again on reading. At first, let him read aloud to you. Watch like a hawk that he doesn't guess a single word. Interrupt him every time he does it and let him work out the word phonetically. He'll never learn to read if he doesn't get over the word-guessing habit.

A PROBLEM

There is a real problem in what to give him to read at this time. It must be something that won't frustrate him. If you give him fairy tales, he'll be bored; if you give him regular books written for a boy his age, he'll bog down.

At the risk of being called inconsistent, I recommend to you "The American Adventure Series," edited by Dr. Emmett A. Betts of Temple University, Philadelphia, and published by the Wheeler Publishing Company, 2831-35 South Parkway, Chicago 16, Ill. This is a series of brief books specially written and edited for poor readers in fourth, fifth, and sixth grade.

After that, you may switch to exciting adventure stories and poetry. With my own pupil "Johnny," I used, among other things, the famous short story, "The Most Dangerous Game" by Richard Connell. It was highly successful. I also let him read the poem "Invictus" by William Ernest Henley. Out of the night that covers me, Black as the pit from pole to pole,

I thank whatever gods may be For my unconquerable soul. 'Till I've forgotten the thrill I felt when Johnny read the word unconquerable off the page.

TOMORROW—How to Teach Johnny to Read. The author gives you a detailed plan you can use to teach your child to read.

EDITOR'S NOTE

The Victoria Daily Times publishes the serialized version of Dr. Rudolf Flesch's controversial book with comment by the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association in the expectation that it will stimulate interest in a vital educational process.

City Men Admitted To Bar

Two Victoria men were admitted to the bar Monday, among 13 new B.C. lawyers, 10 of whom were admitted in Vancouver.

Taking his oath before Chief Justice Sherwood Lett here was John B. Gault, 920 Heywood, son of B. H. E. Gault, chief executive officer of the Labor Relations Board, and in Vancouver, John Anthony Coates; Selwyn Road, who had been articled here with Straith, Rutland and Davidson.

Also called to the bar here was John A. Fraser, whose father is a Vancouver lumber industrialist, articled with the firm of Gregory, Grant and Cox, with whom he will practice.

Mr. Gault was educated at Sir James Douglas, Victoria High, Victoria College and University of British Columbia. He articulated here with the firm of Harman, Sloan and McKenzie and A. J. Burns, with whom he will continue to be associated.

LAWYERS GATHER

City lawyers had gathered to meet the Chief Justice in his first official visit to Victoria in his new appointment.

"You are fortunate," said he to the new barristers, "in being called when there are so many distinguished bar members on hand as witnesses."

Chief Justice Lett, admitted to the bar here 33 years ago, was welcomed by senior members of the Victoria Bar Association, A. D. Crease, W. H. M. Haldane, QC, and Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane.

"I felt it an honor to be appointed to the bench where judges are held in such high respect," he said.

Vacancies Listed In 'Build Your Own Home' Courses

Mrs. William Parker and Mrs. W. J. Lindsay were elected secretaries. Mrs. William Peters is treasurer, and Mrs. Woodward and Mr. Butler delegates to the annual convention.

Teach Him Yourself And Invite Disaster

By LOCAL TEACHERS

From the "hungry" thirties we proceeded through the "warring" forties and we now find ourselves midway in the "do-it-yourself" fifties! Clifton Fadiman points out that these "How-to books" cover ground all the way from Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends and Influence People," to a treatise which explains, "How to Make Your Prayers Effective." This movement, with fine disregard for training or experience, leads the reader into attempting the impossible—after one easy lesson!

And now, Dr. Flesch would add to this type of literature!

Books that tell how to be your own cabinet-maker by using power tools may lead to fingers on the workshop floor. Be your own plumber can cause many situations highly amusing to the neighbors. How to do your own paper-hanging may be the forerunner to the loss of friends and becoming an adverse influence on people by the language you may use. In most of these circumstances, nobody is embarrassed but the eager beaver who buys the book.

MALICIOUS ATTACK

But, how about Johnny? "Teach him yourself," can be an invitation to disaster! Listen to what Dr. Flesch says, "My advice is, teach your child yourself how to read—at the age of 5." Then later, "If you start when your child is 5, you have a whole year to do the job before the school can do any damage to your child's mental habits." This is nothing short of a spiteful, malicious attempt to discredit the teaching profession and shows complete indifference to the possibility that little Johnny can be seriously hurt in the process.

DANGEROUS PROPAGANDA

As teachers we must point out that the procedure that Dr. Flesch suggests flies in the face of all experience and common sense. It is true that some children at five may be ready and able to read. But they are definitely in the minority. The typical 5-year-old is different. Anyone who knows and loves the typical Johnny of 5 realizes that to try to teach him to read by any method, and particularly by one as dull and harsh as that recommended by Dr. Flesch, is utter nonsense. Johnny will look—not at words—but into space—through his tears! Why expect a 5-year-old to work at frustration level when a short year later he can undertake this work happily and with every chance of success?

Naturally, the reader will expect us to object to Dr. Flesch's suggestion to teach Johnny yourself. For that reason he has weakened our position and some parents may question the sincerity of our warning. On several occasions he has referred to the British system of starting formal instruction at the five-year-old level. He would like that to happen here.

Because this question is so important and, at the risk of becoming boring, by quoting, we feel that we must refer you to an authority who certainly cannot be considered partisan to this discussion. Dr. Fred J. Schonell is head of the department of education, University of Birmingham, England. In the preface to his book, "The Psychology and Teaching of Reading," Oliver & Boyd Ltd., Edinburgh and London (1951), Dr. Schonell states:

"Research shows that it is fatal to 'push' young children along in the initial stages of learning to read, particularly if there have not been activities to create a functional language background beforehand." Later he says, "My strongest plea in the teaching of reading is, don't hurry the children, don't expect too much in the early stages—do all you can do to provide a language background. This slower, wider approach will repay doubly later on."

WHAT TO DO

Dr. Schonell advises you against any premature attempt at formal reading instruction but he does suggest how you can make Johnny's preparation for reading a worthwhile contribution to his later success.

Most children come to school well-prepared to undertake the task of reading. The language background has been provided by a good home environment. The small number of beginners who have been deprived of the advantage of a good home start are those who have difficulty at school. In this group will be found those who require remedial instruction and special attention.

In our local school system, these slower learners are not neglected. Their lack of progress is detected early and immediate steps are taken to assist them. Special classes are in operation with teachers who are specialized to instruct these children on an individual basis. If a child is confined to a hospital with a lengthy illness, these also are provided special teaching while away from the school.

When you are perplexed about some question of health or physical well-being you would naturally consult your family doctor. He has earned your confidence through the years. For advice concerning Johnny's reading, don't hesitate! Go to his teacher! She will be glad to advise you. And you may rest assured—she has no personal axe to grind—your Johnny's best interests lie very close to her heart.

Wismer Denies Mulligan Link

Former B.C. Attorney-General
Testifies at Police Probe

VANCOUVER (CP)—Former attorney-general Gordon Wismer said today it was "absurd" that there could have been any protective "arrangement" between himself and police chief Walter Mulligan.

Mr. Wismer, attorney-general in the coalition government of Byron Johnson from 1946 to 1952, was one of the first witnesses to appear today before the R. H. Tupper royal commission into police affairs.

The commission, inquiring into all aspects of police administration and charges of corruption within the 750-man force, met in its 29th sitting today after a 10-day adjournment.

Earlier W. W. Lefaux, counsel for mystery woman Helen Elizabeth Douglas, told Commissioner Tupper that his client was "in no way disguised" when she made her appearance before the inquiry two weeks ago.

The commission is investigating charges of graft and laxity in the Vancouver police force.

Earlier, as the hearings went into the 29th day after a 10-day adjournment, John G. (Jay) Gould, counsel for police chief Walter Mulligan, said he intended to subpoena the husband of Miss Douglas.

She has never been identified publicly by her married name. Mr. Gould, who addressed the commission before Mr. Lefaux' denial, had said he would not cross-examine the woman unless she was placed on the witness stand without disguise.

WOKE NO MAKE-UP
Mr. Lefaux' wife said following Miss Douglas' first appearance, that the witness had been disguised with a yellow wig and horn-rimmed glasses which she normally does not wear.

Mr. Lefaux said today: "I have a pen-and-ink sketch which appeared in the Vancouver Province last September and which is a most excellent likeness. It couldn't have been done unless you could see the features."

"I have known the woman for years. Steps were taken to protect her from photographers."

In response to questioning by Commissioner R. H. Tupper, Mr. Lefaux said:

"She was here without a wig, she wore no make-up."

"No theatrical make-up?" the commissioner asked.

"No make-up of any kind."

Mr. Tupper then asked the lawyer how he could account for an interview his wife gave a newspaper saying Miss Douglas had been heavily disguised and would appear again in court in a different disguise.

Mr. Lefaux admitted his wife gave the interview in his effort to protect the client.

Miss Douglas told the commission at her first appearance that during the five-year period from 1944 to 1949—before she was married—she and Chief Mulligan had an association which included out-of-town trips, one of them to a police chiefs' convention in Montreal.

She said he bought her expensive presents, including a farm.

Today, Mr. Lefaux said efforts were made when the (Continued on Page 21)

U.K. DOLLAR STOCKPILE AT 2-YEAR LOW

LONDON (AP)—Britain's vital gold and dollar reserves suffered a drain of $112,000,000 during September and dropped to their lowest level in two years, the treasury disclosed today.

The monthly announcement of the reserves position showed that they sagged to a total of $2,345,000,000 as of Sept. 30. This figure stands $345,000,000 above what officials regard as the danger level.

Britain acts as gold and dollar banker for the entire sterling area—which includes all the Commonwealth countries except Canada—and their solvency in world trade depends on the state of the reserves.

French Premier Risks Downfall Over Morocco

Orders Council To Succeed Sultan

PARIS (UP)—Premier Edgar Faure risked the downfall of his government today by ordering the immediate formation of a throne council to replace the ousted Sultan of Morocco.

Faure's order to Resident-General Pierre Georges Beyer de Latour in Rabat, French Morocco, touched off a walkout threat by Gaullist members of his cabinet.

When Boyer de Latour engineered Ben Moulay Arala's removal to Tangier last Saturday, he made an agreement with the Presence Francaise, a group of French settlers in Morocco, that no throne council would be formed.

The rightwing groups in the cabinet went along with that view and threatened to resign if Faure proceeded with his plan to form a council.

At the same time, the left wing parties moved against Faure. Socialists and some members of his own Radical Socialist party charged that the premier has not been firm enough in applying his reform policy for Morocco.

Both left and right were determined to bring the government's vulnerable North African policy to the floor of the chamber for a decisive debate as soon as possible.

It was on North Africa that the government of former Premier Pierre Mendes-France fell last February.

Macmillan Flies To Report to Eden On UN Situation

LONDON (UP)—British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan flew to 10 Downing Street from London airport in a helicopter today to report to the cabinet on the international situation. He had landed minutes earlier from a trans-Atlantic flight from New York. Eden held up the start of the cabinet meeting to get Macmillan's report.

FRANTIC WEST END RESIDENTS struggled from their homes, attempting to save their belongings as a wind-fanned inferno engulfed an unoccupied apartment block and three other houses at Bidwell and Comox, early today. Four persons were trapped and killed before they could be aroused. Police are holding an arson suspect. (Vancouver Sun photos.)

Premiers Bargain Behind Doors At Historic Ottawa Conference

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—The federal-provincial conference today devoted the morning to discussing general fiscal arrangements among the provinces and then turned that No. 1 subject over to a committee of financial experts. Prime Minister St. Laurent said the first closed meeting of the conference was given over to enlarging on a plan which he put before Monday's opening public meeting as a possible alternative to the existing tax rental agreements.

Each premier was concerned "with its effect on his own provinces under varying conditions," the prime minister said.

Topic for this afternoon's sittings was not revealed, but it is possible the premiers will take up the question of national health insurance.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, whose government would be asked to share costs of any program, set out these terms Monday for federal participation in a step-by-step plan:

1. A substantial majority of provinces with a substantial majority of the country's population would have to take part.

2. It must be operated and administered by the provinces.

3. It must involve no constitutional change or interference in provincial affairs and must be in the national interest.

Mr. St. Laurent did not mention what the federal share of costs might be.

But Premier Frost of Ontario, who had asked that health insurance be placed on the conference agenda, suggested a 60-per-cent federal contribution to a gradual plan which would develop eventually to hospital insurance covering everyone. Beneficiaries would pay a share through payroll deductions and other collection methods.

VARIED REACTION
Reactions of other premiers varied, but Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan and Bennett of British Columbia, both of whose provinces have forms of health or hospital insurance, (Continued on Page 21)

Vancouver Arson Fire Kills Four

West End Firebug Hunted

VANCOUVER (CP)—Four persons died in a flaming rooming house here today in a blaze described by a fire chief as arson. None of the victims was identified immediately.

The fire started about 6:45 a.m. in a nearly-completed apartment block in the crowded west end residential district.

The area, adjacent to the downtown business district, has been the scene of a dozen minor fires during the last several week-ends and police and fire marshals said a firebug was at work.

The fire spread from the apartment block to three rooming houses which stand scant feet apart at down the block.

All the dead were in one of the rooming houses, purchased last Saturday by W. H. Leary, who came here a week ago from Whitecourt, Alta., with his wife.

Mr. Leary said he put $9,100 down on the $25,000 property.

Coroner Glen McDonald said the four dead were found on the top floor of the house which was occupied "mostly by elderly people." One of the bodies was reported to be that of a young person.

The blaze, still burning but under control two hours after it erupted, caused damage believed upwards of $200,000.

"We had just moved out here from Alberta where we sold our ranch about 100 miles east of Edmonton," Mr. Leary said.

"We moved into the house Monday night. I woke up this morning with a policeman shaking my shoulder and I had to run out with the clothes I've got on."

"I guess we lost just about everything."

A drunken man was reported arrested in the neighborhood, bounded by Bidwell and Comox Streets, but police declined to say if he was an arson suspect.

The fire was driven by a brisk wind and police turned in three alarms to keep the blaze from sweeping the district.

One woman was treated at hospital for shock.

DELIBERATELY SET

Acting fire chief R. H. Pinkerton said the fire "couldn't get away that fast unless it was deliberately set."

"We definitely suspect arson," Jack Zaitzow, owner of the apartment block, said.

"It couldn't have been anything else. There was nothing in the apartment to burn. It was all raw timber." He estimated the building was worth $100,000.

Heat from the fire blistered the homes across Comox street and singed lawns 30 feet away, in front of the death house, blistered then exploded as the gas tank blew.

The possibility of arson gained strength when a neighbor, who declined use of her name, said a man was seen lurking in the vicinity before the fire broke out.

POLICE SPOT FLAMES

Constables Ron Thompson and Jack Bissett, patrolling the area of old, closely-packed rooming houses, spotted the blaze.

"I went into one of the houses and Jack went into the other, on either side of the apartment building," Const. Thompson said.

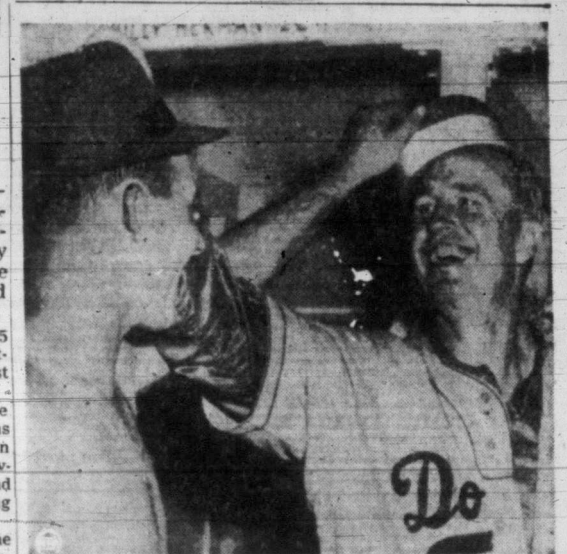

"Suddenly there was a big sheet of flame which carried over the home I was in on the west side of the apartment."

"I got a young woman and elderly couple out and started back upstairs but the flames started coming through the windows."

Firemen reported the wooden fire escape on Mr. Leary's home was on the side of the house first hit by the flames and was one of the first things to burn.

Firemen fought the blaze in a pelting rainstorm.

The sidewalks were littered with personal belongings of those who fled the fire.

Old Cap Won't Fit

The big dream finally came true for the Brooklyn Dodgers today as they defeated New York Yankees, 2-0, to win the first World Series in Brooklyn history. Joining the riotous celebration in the Brooklyn dressing-room was manager Walt Alston, who exchanged caps with his players to accommodate an expanding hat band. (NEA-Telephoto.)

BUMS WIN SERIES

Podres Blanks Yankees 2-0

NEW YORK (AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers finally won their first world championship today by whipping New York Yankees 2-0 in the deciding game of the classic behind the iron-nerved pitching of young Johnny Podres and the clutching hitting of Gil Hodges.

Hodges drove in runs in the fourth and sixth innings while the 23-year-old Podres, pitching out of one hole after another, came through magnificently in the clutch to win his second game of the series with an eight-hitter.

A spectacular one-handed catch by Sandy Amoros in the sixth inning with two Yanks on base and none out was another decisive factor.

Thus the Dodgers captured their first championship on their eighth attempt and their sixth try against the Yankees. It was the Yankees' first defeat in the series since 1912 when St. Louis Cardinals accomplished the feat.

It also was the first series' loss for Casey Stengel since he took over the Yankees helm in 1949 and won five straight world series and six pennants.

DODGERS SET RECORD
The Dodgers became the first team ever to drop the first two games and then rally to win the series in seven games.

They struck first against lefty Tommy Byrne, who had whipped them in the second game with a five-hitter. In the fourth inning, Roy Campanella, heavy-hitting Dodger catcher who had been hitless in 12 previous trips to the plate at Yankee Stadium, doubled to left. He went to third on Carl Furillo's roller to short and came charging home on Hodges' line single to left.

In the sixth, the Dodgers loaded the sacks on Byrne, who then was replaced by Bob Grim, a Brooklyn resident. Hodges fled deep to Bob Cerv in right center and Peeewe Reese scampered home from third.

CONSTANT THREAT
That was it although the Yanks threatened constantly as tension mounted and pulses pounded in the supercharged atmosphere.

In their half of the sixth, especially, it looked as if the Yanks were going to break the spell of the cool lefthander.

Billy Martin walked on four pitches and Clem Labine, ace of the Dodger bullpen corps, started to warm up. Gil McDougald laid down a bunt inside the (Continued on Page 21)

GREAT DAY

Dodger Fans Laugh, Weep

NEW YORK (UP)—Brooklyn ran whooping and hollering into the streets this afternoon.

From a window high in a downtown office building a flag broke forth with the words: "We doo it!"

Office workers poured into the streets in the borough hall section, shouting, dancing and crying with joy.

Torn paper fluttered from windows.

Every automobile horn in town was on full blast.

Strangers slapped strangers on the back.

A reporter struggled to a telephone.

"I can only say," he reported, "all hell is breaking loose."

"My God," gasped a little old lady as she scurried for cover. "This is terrible. But I'm sure it's worse in Flatbush."

Chest Gifts Total $22,623

At noon today in the Greater Victoria Community Chest drive for $210,000, returns stood at nearly double those of last year's drive at the same time.

Latest returns show $22,623 pledged or given for the feather agency, a considerable increase over the $11,364 collected by noon of the campaign's second day in 1954.

The drive objective is up $7,000 over 1954 to meet the increasing services provided by the 17 member agencies. And canvassers have intensified efforts.

Thanks to the payroll plan of payment, indications are strong this year that the scheme will be even more successful.

Costs of the chest administration and campaign costs are low, averaging 8.34 cents per dollar collected.

Chest officials are confident that this area will top last year's number of contributors, 27,500.

UNCLE ZEKE AT THE RACES

His Bankroll Takes Dip

STAKE $50 — BANKROLL

NOW $46.70.

That $4 I dropped on Amplifier in the second race Monday really hurt. Don't mind losing when my horse runs to something like form and puts up a show, but after his first two starts, here that Amplifier just folded up.

Still, I think I've got a good bet going this afternoon unless the overnight rain makes the track too sloppy.

In any case I'll think I'll pick me a horse for Wednesday that can make speed in the soft going. So it'll be that good one Supreme Leader for $2 to place in the fourth race.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles revealed today he has told Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov that delivery of arms to Egypt would not contribute to relaxing world tensions.

FINAL BULLETINS

Fluoridation Vote 'Ridiculous'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A proposal by city council to present a plebiscite on fluoridation of Vancouver's water supply was described today as "ridiculous" by the president of the American Dental Association.

Dr. Daniel F. Lynch of Washington, D.C., said at a press conference it was "ridiculous to ask the people to vote on a scientific question of which they have little knowledge."

Missing Hunter Walks From Woods

Forestry officials said Anderson walked into their Hadoo lake camp at 6:30 a.m. The hunter was rushed to medical aid but no other details of his condition were immediately available.

Search Pressed for Missing Men

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—RCMP at Telegraph Creek, 200 miles north of here, are still searching for two district Indians who have been missing on a hunting expedition for the past 20 days, it was learned here today.

Missing are Wilfred Hawkins, 29 and Terry Carlick, 22, both from the Betty creek district. The men left their home Sept. 15 on a hunting trip carrying only lunch and taking no camping gear with them RCMP said.

Wismer Denies Mulligan Link

Former B.C. Attorney-General Testifies at Police Probe

VANCOUVER (CP)—Former attorney-general Gordon Wismer said today it was "absurd" that there could have been any protective "arrangement" between himself and police chief Walter Mulligan.

Mr. Wismer, attorney-general in the coalition government of Byron Johnson from 1946 to 1952, was one of the first witnesses to appear today before the R. H. Tupper royal commission into police affairs.

The commission, inquiring into all aspects of police administration and charges of corruption within the 750-man force, met in its 29th sitting today after a 10-day adjournment.

H. A. D. Oliver, counsel for Det. Sgt. Len Cuthbert, read a letter dated Oct. 23, 1943, which Mr. Wismer agreed he wrote to then Chief Constable Donald McKay.

In it Mr. Wismer, then city prosecutor, paid tribute to the "exceptional ability" with which Det. Cuthbert investigated two cases and the extremely fair way in which he gave evidence.

Mr. Oliver then said this was one of a number of letters of commendation which should have been in Sgt. Cuthbert's personal file, but which "mysteriously disappeared" before these hearings opened.

Commissioner Tupper said a number of reports had been handed to the clerk, some as exhibits and some not. Mr. Oliver said his recollection was the document had been produced by T. G. Norris, former counsel for Chief Mulligan.

Mr. Gould requested that commission counsel investigate with Supt. John Pisk as to what had happened. He accused Mr. Oliver of "casting an inference."

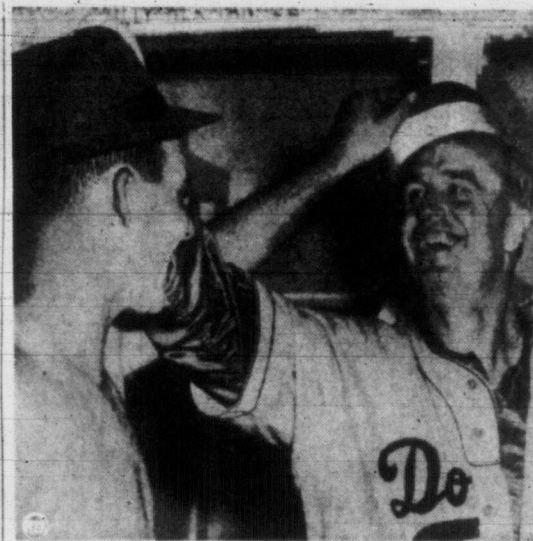

Commissioner Tupper then asked Mr. Wismer about hearing rumors in 1949, and Wismer replied:

ALWAYS RUMORS

"There always have been rumors about chiefs of police, but you pay no attention unless there is something to put your teeth into."

Mr. Tupper asked him if any

Police Hunt Firebug In Four-Death Blaze

Elderly Victims Trapped in Rooms In Vancouver West End Apartment

VANCOUVER (CP)—

Four persons died in a flaming rooming house here today in a blaze described by a fire chief as arson.

The dead were identified as: Mrs. Elizabeth Kerr, about 80;

Albert H. Stranks, 76; Mary Eleanor Stranks, 80; Miss Doreen Powell, about 47.

The fire started about 6:45 a.m. in a nearly-completed apartment block in the crowded west end residential district.

The area, adjacent to the downtown business district, has been the scene of a dozen minor fires during the last several weeks and police and fire marshals said a firebug was at work.

The fire spread from the apartment block to three rooming houses which stand scant feet apart all down the block.

All the dead were in one of the rooming houses, purchased last Saturday by W. H. Leary, who came here a week ago from Whitecourt, Alta., with his wife.

Mr. Leary said he put $9,100 down on the $25,000 property. The blaze, still burning but under control two hours after it erupted, caused damage believed upwards of $200,000.

Podres Credited With Pitching Game of Lifetime

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Manager Walt Alston summed up the feelings of the entire happiness-crazed Dodger gang in the tumult of their victorious clubhouse: "Johnny Podres pitched the game of a lifetime to win the one we waited a lifetime to enjoy."

"This was something people said never would happen," beamed Alston joyfully. "Never once did I lose confidence that we would win."

It's a good thing there's no game tomorrow, either, for those babbling Brooks were nearly killing themselves in their frenzy of back-slapping, bear-hugging and yes—even kissing.

Carl Erskine hugged Podres and said, "maybe my old soup-bone isn't so sound any more but nobody needs to worry as long as they've got you around."

"Man, everything that I'd throw was good," piped catcher Roy Campanella. "I know, because my hand is so sore I don't think I could catch tomorrow. Never saw him faster. Never saw him mix 'em up so good. Late in the game I kept calling for more fast ones because of those stadium shadows. "And do you know sumpin' man? He got stronger as he went. Oh, my achin' hand!"

Podres, who had to have police on the field pull his own teammates off him, echoed "Oh, my achin' back!"

Coach Jake Pitler was crying big tears of joy and there was even a suspicion of moisture around Pee Wee Reese's eyelids.

Walter O'Malley, Dodger president, came to congratulate Alston and the players and the mild-mannered pilot said, "I told you we'd do it and that you didn't need to worry."

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees came in to congratulate Alston, and he said "you know that song about that longest walk?"

"Well, I just took it, coming over to this here dressing room."

Pitch, Bat Dodgers to First Series Victory; Amoros Pulls Great Catch

NEW YORK (AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers finally won their first world championship today by whipping New York Yankees 2-0 in the deciding game of the classic behind the iron-nerved pitching of young Johnny Podres and the clutch hitting of Gil Hodges.

Hodges drove in runs in the fourth and sixth innings while the 23-year-old Podres, pitching out of one hole after another, came through magnificently in the clutch to win his second game of the series with an eight-inning.

A spectacular one-handed catch by Sandy Amoros in the sixth inning with two Yanks on base and none out was another decisive factor.

Thus the Dodgers captured their first championship on their eighth attempt and their sixth try against the Yankees. It was the Yankees' first defeat in the series since 1912 when St. Louis Cardinals accomplished the feat.

It also was the first series' loss for Casey Stengel since he took over the Yankee helm in 1949 and won five straight world series and six pennants.

THE DODGERS SET RECORD The Dodgers became the first team ever to drop the first two games and then rally to win the series in seven games.

They struck first against lefty Tommy Byrne, who had whipped them in the second game with a five-hitter. In the fourth inning, Roy Campanella, heavy-hitting Dodger catcher who had been hitless in 12 previous trips to the plate at Yankee Stadium, doubled to left. He went to third on Carl Furillo's roller to short and came charging home on Hodges' line single to left.

In the sixth, the Dodgers loaded the sacks on Byrne, who then was replaced by Bob Grim, a Brooklyn resident, Hodges fied deep to Bob Cerv in right center and Pee-wee Reese scampered home from third.

CONSTANT THREAT That was it although the Yanks threatened constantly as
